Historic Preservation (Fiscal year report from the Historic Preservation Officer)

In 2014, the review process for alterations to historic structures was streamlined to provide more convenience for Certificate of Appropriateness applicants, while continuing to protect historic neighborhood character. This was accomplished through increased use of administrative review, as well as increasing flexibility of review for non-contributing and non-historic buildings within historic districts.

Certificates of Appropriateness

In 2014, most repairs with property owners did not require a formal Certificate of Appropriateness, since all repairs did not change the design or material used. In 2014, 16 projects involved enough changes to require a COA. Of these, through consultation of options and available resources with staff, 15 of these were approved without changes, and 8 of them were able to be approved administratively, without any delays to applicant. In 2014, one application was approved contingent upon suggested changes to the proposed project.

Addressing Non-compliant Projects

In 2014, three projects were initiated without COAs or accompanying necessary permits. Through communication between Historic Preservation officer, Building Official, and property owners, these situations were resolved to the satisfaction of all parties.

Preservation Handbook

The Preservation Handbook, which was created in late 2013, was utilized in 2014 and distributed to interested property owners, realtors, and contractors, to provide a brief summary of policy and sources of information related to maintenance of historic properties.

Downtown Historic Resources Survey

Utilizing a CLG grant from the Texas Historical Commission, the survey of the Downtown Historic District was updated. The previous survey of this area was completed in 1993, over 20 years ago. This survey is used by individual property owners, staff, and the HLC in making informed decisions about the district. Utilizing volunteers, this survey was accomplished with no net out of pocket expense excluding budgeted staff hours. A conservative minimum estimate for a similar document produced under consultant contract would cost in excess of $10,000.

Individualized Consultation and Reference

Throughout 2014, staff has provided information to property owners with specific problems and questions regarding their historic properties. The type of information generally requested varied. Often it was regarding finding reputable sources for finding the longest lasting, most appropriate, and cost effective repair for their historic property. On other occasions, the conversations were related to local history or the history of a particular building. Additional dialogues were related to sources of funding such as incentives and grants available to property owners.

Building Maintenance

In 2014, staff has worked with several property owners regarding the need and requirement under ordinance to keep their historic property in good repair. Tangible results have included measures to attractively enclose the building openings, repointing and repainting of masonry, general cleanup, and measures to encourage sale to a buyer with sufficient means to repair.

In 2014, one historic building, despite efforts to rehabilitate, extending back to 2009, was unable to be saved, and is scheduled for demolition. Prior to this measure, efforts to save the building were undertaken. These include:

- Working with realtor to develop property descriptions that would be attractive to buyers of historic properties.
- Facilitating contacts between potential rehabilitators and property owners.
- Requiring an estimate of needed repairs by a registered architect.
- Scheduling and hosting a stakeholders' meeting between the property owners, HLC, and staff to determine feasible options for the building.

Ultimately, these efforts did not result in a feasible option for repair and rehabilitation of the building. To mitigate the loss of historic materials and impact upon the local landfill, staff has worked with property owners to allow sufficient time to remove salvage materials and make it available for use in the repair of other local historic properties.

Non-profits

Staff has worked with local non-profits to help them find resources for their historic properties. Efforts include meetings with the United Way representatives regarding properties, as well as facilitation of a THC grant application submittal for repairs to the Mt. Vernon AME Church.

Public

Staff has worked with the Main Street program in outreach projects, including interpretative panels for vacant buildings and a historic building walking tour.

Planning and Zoning Commission

Recommended approval of the following zoning items:

- Zoning change from residential to office at 1101 N. Cedar Street (Alamo School).
- Zoning ordinance amendments providing a definition for poultry processing and requiring a specific use permit for this type of use in the industrial zones.
